

Best Practice- I: Co-curricular Activities:

Objective of the Practice:

Our institution aims to develop soft skills, foster creativity, build confidence and enhance time management among students by organising these activities. These objectives include:

1. Development of soft skills like drama, music and teamwork and leadership
2. By participating in these activities students can boost their confidence and overcome anxiety while public speaking
3. By creating a fine balance between academics and co-curricular activities students can effectively develop time management skills in their life
4. Having taken interest in art, craft and writing students can create creativity that would be useful in their life to come

The Context:

Co-curricular activities are indispensable part of a student's educational outlook, providing a holistic learning experience that complements academic performance. As these activities are non-academic, so they are not antagonistic to academic activities but complementary to them.

The Practice:

Our institution organised several activities like 16 day Theatre Workshop, Essay Writing, Rangoli, Poster Making, slogan writing, Poem recitation, song presentation competitions and activities like Yoga, extension lectures on Legal Literacy etc. to enhance skills, build confidence, develop better time management, develop creativity.

Evidences of Success:

More than 50 percent of the college students took part in these activities. It is the earnest endeavor of the college staff that it always motivates maximum students to take part in maximum co-curricular activities.

Best Practice- II: Addition of ICT Facilities:

Objective of the Practice:

Our institution aims to promote ICT enabled learning experience as well as interactive and interesting classroom atmosphere so that students may be engaged and involved themselves in the basic concept of curriculum through multimedia contents in ICT enabled atmosphere. The college aims to avoid rote learning and stresses on the importance of conceptual based learning which is feasible by complete interaction of teachers and students in ICT context.

The Context:

ICT based teaching provides real learning environments that can enhance and support teaching learning process simultaneously as we do in real life situation because through virtual images students can visualize the physical context of a situation. It also lays stress on collaborative learning experience as students engage themselves in peer to peer learning.

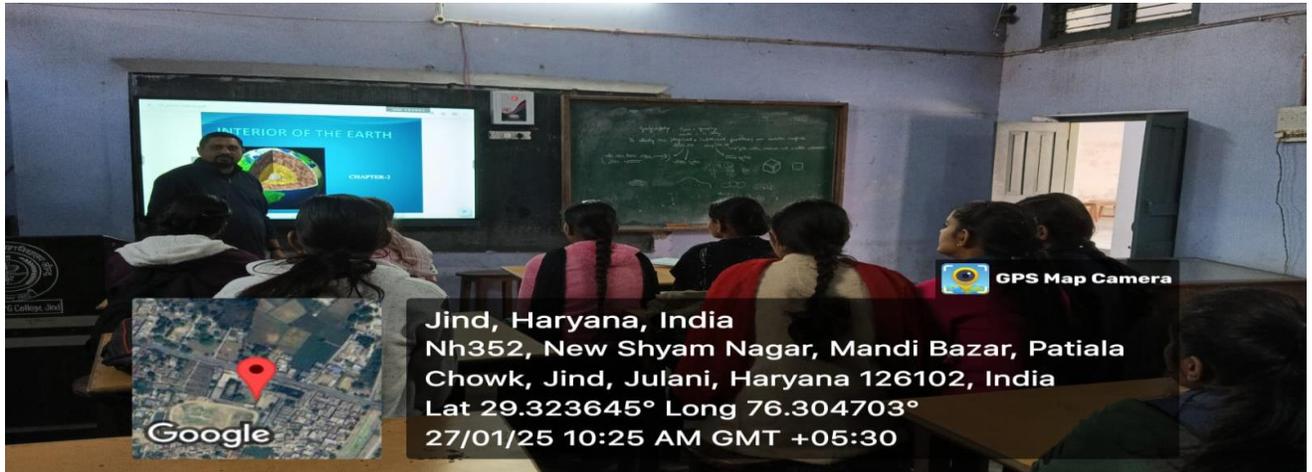

The Practice:

During the session, the college added 3 interactive panel of 75" each in three classrooms with android operating system, touch screen display and external PC connectivity. Now the college has 6 ITC enabled classrooms.

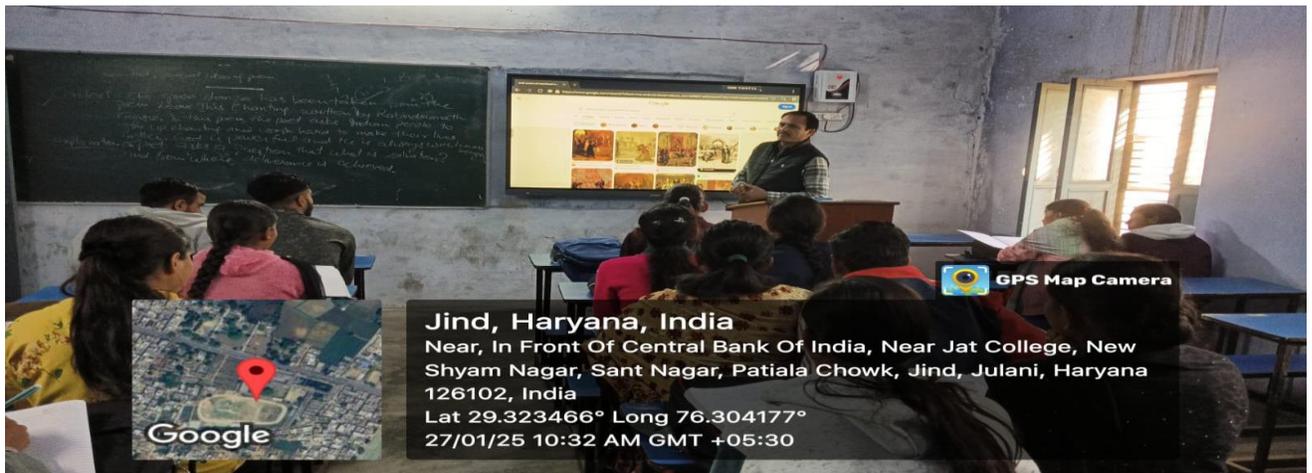

Evidences of Success:

These ICT enabled classrooms have been allotted to most of teachers as some teachers take regular classes in these room and other teachers take their classes whenever requirement arises according to the topics of the curriculum.
